Someone Who Cares

By Derek Prince

This is Derek Prince with a word for you from the Word.

"When my spirit grows faint within me, it is you who know my way. In the path where I walk men have hidden a snare for me. Look to my right and see; no one is concerned for me. I have no refuge; no one cares for my life." (Psalm 142:3–4, NIV)

I wonder whether you've ever felt like that: "No one cares about me. They don't mind whether I live or whether I die. All I have is problems. I'm walking in a path and there are hidden snares on it. There are problems I don't really understand and I don't know how to solve. I can't see any source of help. I look to the right, I look to the left. No one bothers about me. I'm just a speck of dust in the universe. I'm just a name on a list somewhere. There's a birth certificate in some dusty office that relates that I was born, but no one cares."

That's not altogether true. There is someone who cares. There is someone who knows your way. That's what the psalmist said, "When my spirit grows faint within me it is you who know my way."

You may feel lonely, neglected, uncared for. You may not understand your own way, you may not know the problems that lie ahead, you may not have an answer to them all, but there is one who knows: it's the Lord. He knows your way. He is with you; He will see you through if you will turn to Him in prayer. You are not forgotten, you are not neglected, you are not unwanted. He made you, He cares for you, He's with you.
